to over a thousand. Every minute added to the number, and at 9.39 at least 3,600 were there.

When it began to rain the few who had umbrelias raised them, but the majority stood there, sulkily indifferent to the weather, and thinking only of the hunger which starred them in the face.

When 10 o'clock arrived the street in front of the Exchange was black with people. The large hall downstairs was literally packed. So were the stairs and every one of the little meeting-rooms upstairs.

Bartenders stood ready in expectation of doing a rushing business, but not a single drink was purchased.

The crowd seemed to be waiting for some one—for a leader to give the word as to what should be done, but no one volunteered to assume that role.

Finally a voice cried out that the place was too small, that even if a meeting was intended it would be impossible to hold one for want of space.

The same voice suggested Waihalla Hall, on Orchard street, and instantly the cry was talten up.

"Waihalla Hall! Waihalla Hail!"

As if with one impulse the crowd formed into line, and without exchanging as much as a single word, the march began up Tenth street to First avenue and along to Allen street to First avenue and along to the crowd can be imagined from the fact that when the head of the line had reached Allen street, the others had not ceased moving out of Tenth street.

The unemployed ment swept chairs and tables aside in their eagerness to hold the meeting, and they had just about settled down to business when word of the affair was sent to the Eldridge street police station.

Capt. Devery was not there at the time, but the Sergeant in charge, recognizing the gravity of the situation, at once called out the reserve section. The reserves, numbering about four-teen men, were fast asleep at the time. It took them only a few minutes, however, to get ready, and with Roundsman Colton at their head they started on a double-quick run for the scene of the disturbance.

It was then that pandemonium broke loose. The sons and daughter of the proprietor of the hall insisted that every one of the unemployed men should be arrested at once.

The roundsman saw that this was impossible, as the hall was black with men.

one of the Ward detectives was by his side, and he at once tried to seize a man who had mounted a chair and was in the act of speaking. The man resisted and then several whacks were heard. The police said that this noise was caused by flying bottles, thrown by the workingmen, who in turn said it was caused by policemen's clubs.

Anyhow, the speaker did receive a nasty wound in the left side of the head, whether from club or bottle is not known. Then he was dragged through the crowd, and with a policeman on either side was marched to the stationhouse.

WELLSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The People's paris of Allegany County yesterday nominated the hall at any cost, and more police were sent for. Then he changed his mind for the moment by leaving the hall to take care of itself, and to directed his men to clear the streets, which were fast getting choked up in the vicinity.

The first arrest was made by Ward Detective Foley. The prisoner's name was Abert Rosenfeld, and he sald he was a tailor, but refused to tell where he lived. At the Eldridge street station, however, he afterwards gave his address as 144 Essex street.

Rosenfeld was pointed out by Proprietor Fliegman and several other persons who had witnessed the riot, as the ringleader of themob, and as one of those who had been active in smashins in the doors.

inquiry there resulted in the discovery that the reserves had been held in readiness. The crowd up to that time had been most orderly.

Word of the coming of the unemployed had reached Walhalis Hall ahead of the crowd, and in the absence of Flier man, the proprietor, his sons and daughters got ready to defend the place. They first barred the door, and then demanded through the keyhole to know what the crowd wanted. The reply came back that they wanted to hold a meeting in the hall, but had no money to pay for its use.

They were told they could not have it. Instantly there was a crash of breaking giass.

Paving stones had been seized from the street, where they had been lying around loose.

The moment the first pane of glass was smashed every one seemed to throw caution to the winds. Pane after pane of the plate-glass went in, and finally the door was also forced.

Mr. Flierman's daughter, a young girl of eighteen years, tried to get in front of the crowd as it swept in, but she was thrown aside as if she were an infant.

The unemployed med swept chairs and tables aside in their eagerness to hold the meeting, and they had just about set.

Two other arrests were made by Policeman George Werner. One of the prisoners was Joseph Gold, thirty-five years old, a tailor, of 163 Hester street, and the other Abraham Simon, twenty-seven years old, of 39 Richardson street, Williamsburg, also a tailor.

They had assisted Rosenfeld in leading the attack on the doors and windows of the saloon, it was said.

The howling mob followed the officers and their prisoners to the very door of the station, and at one time it was feared that they would attempt to rescue their companions. of cross-examination. The witness of direct examination said that John had never told him that he had any blood disease.

John Feehan, one of John's fellow workmen, testified that John had told him there was nothing the matter with him. Thomas Lee, John Thompson and Charles Johnson were brought forth by the State to testify that they were on the streets of Princeton as late as 2 o'clock, and saw neither strange men nor carriages.

Considerable of the testimony of the Shann family concerning the medicine prescribed for John was contradicted by Dr. E. H. Bergen.

There was a lively tilt between counsel for the defense and the Court as to the admission of the doctor's testimony, on the ground that it was not rebuttal. It was admitted and exceptions reflied. Mrs. Shann's treatment of John was excellent. John was a bad and sometimes an abusive patient.

After producing the will of Mr. Shann, Act li. All 20 clock a recease was taken until 1.30, preparatory to the summing up of the State. Judge Abbett an nounced that the case would go to the Jury to-morrow.
